Red Skelton

as we see it

Anybody have an opinion on loud commercials? Here's a chance to say something about them.

Congressman Craig Hosmer has undertaken a campaign against "loud, noisy and therefore obnoxious commercials on radio and TV." It's a praiseworthy endeavor if there ever was one, and certainly is worthy of support.

Breathes there a red-blooded American viewer who hasn't muttered imprecations against sponsors who insist on filming their sales messages at higher-than-normal volume? Is there one among us who hasn't dreamed happily of wonderful tortures to be tried on station executives who instruct engineers to "turn up the sound for the commercials?"

Congressman Hosmer says his campaign is "faltering." He complained to the Federal Communications Commission. No answer. He wrote the networks. No response. Now he's appealing to the people.

With a few hundred thousand letters in his mailbox, the good Congressman, who hails from California, might start impressing the men responsible for loud commercials. He might carry some weight with a well-supported complaint to the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters.

Let's all write Congressman Hosmer a letter. Let's tell him that we agree—or disagree—with his campaign to bring the commercials down to the same sound level as the programs.

Send your letter, or card, to:

Hon. Craig Hosmer

Back in the fall of 1951, Red Skelton burst onto the Nation's television screens like a rocket headed nonstop for the moon. He was the sensation of the year, capping the season by winning an "Emmy" award as the best comedian.

Riding the crest, Skelton lifted his sights the following season from the moon to Mars. In association with a producer (who has not been heard from since) he formed his own company and produced his show on film. The result was quite possibly the most good. I figure it's pretty good if the sponsors keep wanting to buy us, and they still do. I figure that's good."

Actually, neither Skelton nor his associates would have you believe they are particularly happy over the show's surge into the golden circle of top-rated shows. "You get up there too close to the top," glooms Bo Roos, Skelton's business manager,

Right Up There

Red Skelton's Back On Top
And Here Are Reasons Why

unbelievable disaster since the unsinkable Titanic sank. (See page 16.) It also lent considerable weight to the legend of "the second-year jinx."

It has taken Skelton, one of the great natural clowns of our day, almost three years to pull himself and his show out of the depths. This season, his fifth, he is back not only in the Top 10 but in the top two or three (depending on the rating service you consult).

"Heck," he says, "we haven't changed much. Heck, we haven't changed hardly at all. Heck, we've been in the top 20 all along except nobody ever pays any attention to who's in 11th place. Must be upwards of 400 or 500 different shows on the air. If we're in the first 20, I figure that's pretty Guest stars like Jeanne Cagney have helped Skelton hike ratings.

"and people start sniping at you. I couldn't tell you why they start, but they sure do. And there's only one direction left to go—down."

The sniping has begun with the suggestion that Skelton's preceding The $64,000 Question has been a big factor in his new-found pre-eminence. "I honestly don't think that's it," Skelton says. "We've had all sorts of surveys made, and our rating is just as strong at the beginning of our half hour as it is at continued

Red's Advice: Keep

the end. You can't tell me people tune us in a full 30 minutes ahead of time just to be sure they're not going to miss 64. Furthermore, on the Coast we go on at 9:30, two and a half hours after they've passed out all the money. And our show's got a pretty sizable audience out here.

"I think it's a cycle," he continues, waving a huge cigar. "I think the people are coming out of a war-scare mental depression and are ready for some good clean fun again. I'll tell you what I think—I think that if Milton Berle would forget all this trick stuff he's been trying and go back to being himself, to being the Berle he was in the beginning, he'd hit the No. 1 spot in a matter of weeks. He's the greatest walking comic around here."

Skelton pooh-poohs any suggestion that he has made any drastic changes in his format. "We just have a lot of fun, that's all. We've tended to run a sort of story line through the sketches instead of doing a series of blackouts, and we've lately been getting some darned good supporting players, but basically the show is the same thing it's always been."

Skelton is frank to admit, however, that good guest names helped the show. "They wouldn't use to give me any," he says, "but now I'm getting guys like John Carradine and Keefe Brasselle and Dorothy Lamour and Jeanne Cagney. It helps a lot. I think people get tired of looking at the same old face all the time."

He also feels he himself can get tired going over the same old script. Nobody sees the show script until Monday morning, and Tuesday night they go on the air with it. "You spend a whole week rehearsing comedy lines," he says, "and they don't zip any more."

Skelton's system is great for Skelton, who has a photographic memory, but a little rough on cast members who don't memorize lines so easily. "But even if we fluff a few," he shrugs, "who cares? We aren't the United Nations in a debating session. We're just having fun. And if we're enjoying it, the audience is going to enjoy it."

Asked what advice he'd give to a young comic to help avoid the second-year jinx, Skelton has a quick and rather unusual answer. "Don't ever let 'em know how much money you're making," he says. "That's fatal. Guy's a big hit his first time around. So he starts dressing the part, starts looking real expensive. And then the publicity starts on the million-dollar contract and all of a sudden the audience loses you."

Skelton himself dresses simply, never wears rings or stickpins and is reluctant to talk about money. "Things are looking up," he says. "My manager got me two walk-ons in a single week."

BACK TO THE SUNDIAL!

Utter Confusion Reigns
As Television Grapples With Daylight-Saving Time

Back in the days when the sun rose and set at sunrise and sunset, and the cow was a normally adjusted member of the American community, people told time by an old-fashioned device known as a clock.

Today the sun rises and sets by decree of various state, county and city governments. All in basic disagreement as to what constitutes "day" and "night," they are in full agreement as to what constitutes confusion—Daylight-Saving Time.

We've got it straight from Bridey Murphy that when milkmaids turn up an hour early—or late—the cows, despite outward placidity, are seething inside, and are subject to a new disease known as the DT's—Daylight Times. Symptoms: bleary eyes, flaccid tails, lack of friskiness.

People, on the other hand, get the WH's during Daylight Time. WH stands for "Wha' Hoppen?" It affects their TV viewing.

Consider, as an example, The Red Skelton Show. The normal, or Standard Time, network confusion has the show originating from Hollywood at 6:30 P.M. for live airing at 9:30 P.M. in New York. That, of course, means 8:30 in Central Time areas and 7:30 in the Mountain Time Zone. On the West Coast, where the whole thing started, the show is seen via kinescope recording at 9:30—by which time it's after midnight in New York and Steve Allen is giving away salamis on another network.

Comes Daylight Time, and Los Angeles and New York switch to Daylight on the same date—April 29. (Other places have decided other dates would be fun, so they pick them at random.) Thanks to local option, neighboring communities a few miles apart in such states as Pennsylvania, Virginia and Indiana, to name a few, suddenly find themselves an hour apart.

Neighbors living on opposite sides of city-limits lines, or county lines, find themselves watching Skelton at two different times at the same time. It's 8:30 on one side of the street, 9:30 on the other side—with a white line down the middle. And Skelton—in color.

The poor kids on the 8:30 side get to stay up to see Skelton. On the 9:30 side . . . Oh it's sad, it is, and leads to many a severe case of the WH's.

If things can be fairly standard during Standard Time—why can't some light be shed during Daylight Time? There ought to be a law.

Turn page to see the situation at a glance. Huh!

TENSE NERVOUS HEADACHES call for STRONGER Yet SAFER ANACIN

Won't Upset The Stomach

Anacin® not only gives stronger, faster relief from pain of headache but is also safer. Won't upset the stomach and has no bad effects. You see, Anacin is like a doctor's prescription. That is, Anacin contains not just one but a combination of medically proven, active ingredients. Scientific research has proved no single drug can give such strong yet such safe relief as Anacin Tablets.

OFFICIAL VERSION of time zones and Standard and Daylight areas presents a pretty picture. Only trouble is, communities near time-zone borders often ignore official maps and switch to suit themselves. Same is true of some communities in Standard or Daylight (by law or custom) areas. Worst time puzzle exists in local-option areas, where cities usually go Daylight (or Standard) and surrounding country sticks to Standard (or Daylight). Congress generally ignores the national time chaos, although interstate transportation and communication (TV, for instance) are affected. Above map was drawn to specifications of official Federal and state sources, nearly all of whom were quite cooperative—and confused.

Shows
This Week

Days specified are for original network showings. Programs are seen later on some stations.

Liberace? No, just (l. to r.) Ralph Clanton, John Irving and Biff McGuire shedding eerie light on a mystery in a haunted castle. Alfred Hitchcock Presents, CBS Sunday.

Easy Does It. A search for booty traps aboard a captured German submarine. Arthur Space (r.) stars in 'Away Boarders,' on Telephone Time, CBS, this Sunday.

Fore! Bob Cummings, Rosemary DeCamp tee off on prowlers. The Bob Cummings Show, CBS, this Thursday.

Ship-shapelles. Blonde Noreen Nash and brunette Jill Jarmyn, with Bill Bishop (l.) and Mike O'Shea, attend yachting party on It's a Great Life, NBC, Sunday.

Oooomph! Dick Powell develops sudden tummy ache in 'A Long Way from Texas,' Four Star Playhouse production, CBS, Thursday.

Private Eye. Roxanne Arlen appears in 'The Payoff,' a caper on NBC's Ford Theater, Thursday.

Heart Beat Like Tam Tam. Shaft from Cupid's bow appears to have found its target in John Lupton. Rita Moreno plays Indian maiden. Program is 'Broken Arrow,' 20th Century-Fox Hour drama, Wednesday on CBS.

Spree. Vanessa Brown is poor secretary who hits jackpot on The Millionaire, CBS Wednesday.

Annie Puts Her Hair Up

That Gun-Totin' Cowgirl Is A Doll in Civvies, Too

Gail Davis, as television's Annie Oakley, is a hard-riding, straight-shooting girl of the Old West, able to keep up with any man. But she finds it more fun to get out of those Western togs and prove she can keep up with any woman—even those slick city gals—in feminine allure, as she is preparing to do in photo above.

Chicago Dateline

The switch to Daylight Saving Time on Sunday brings no changes for the Chicago TV viewer. If he has been seeing a certain show at 7 P.M., he'll continue seeing it at 7.

This applies to Chicago and Rockford, both of whom have switched to Central Daylight Time.

All times listed in TV GUIDE will be Central Daylight Time.

Elkhart and South Bend viewers who have been adding an hour to the times listed in TV GUIDE will no longer need to make any adjustment. With Chicago moving to Daylight Time and Elkhart staying with Eastern Standard, 7 P.M. in Chicago is 7 P.M. in Elkhart.

Wisconsin viewers should subtract one hour from the listings.

That wasn't a very nice thief who visited the Merchandise Mart the other day and stole Kay Westfall's mink coat—on her birthday, no less! He even swiped a birthday card.

Spanky McFarland, star of the old "Our Gang" comedies, was in town to receive a popularity award from Ch. 7's Little Rascals (new title for the films).

Vaughn Monroe, in Chicago for WNBQ's conversion to color, said he's considering three possible formats for a live half-hour or hour-long show. A 15-minute show is too short for much of anything, he explained.

Speaking of the color conversion—soon after the button was pressed and color flamed up on the television screens, an irate woman with a black and white set called to complain she wasn't receiving any color!

Bruno "Junior" Zielinski of It's Polka Time refuses to classify the current polka craze as a "fad."

"DODSWORTH"

Fredric March and Claire Trevor

COLOR Originally a novel by Sinclair Lewis, "Dodsworth" was made into a play and later a motion picture by Sidney Howard with Walter Huston in the title role. Tonight Fredric March plays the retired auto manufacturer planning a trip to Europe with his wife Fran. Both look forward to the trip, though for different reasons. Sam Dodsworth hopes to see some of the world he's never known, generally enjoy his leisure and possibly discover his own identity after years in harness. Fran, feeling a resurgence of vitality, hopes to recapture the excitement of her youth, since, as she says, she has brains and the skill has looks. But the trip has consequences neither of them foresees.

Coons

My husband says Richard Greene of Robin Hood is 52 years old, and I say he's still in the 40's.—Mrs. Del Perico, N. Michigan Ave., Chicago 2, Ill.

I would like to know the age of Uncle Johnny Coons, and if he has any children.—Stephen Jacoby. [Johnny is 39, is married and has four boys—David 16, Douglas 12, Ricky 10 and Tommy 6.]

The sponsors have planned such an interesting and entertaining hour of commercials from 7 to 8 P.M. Wednesdays on Ch. 9 that it seems a shame to interrupt them once or twice every 15 minutes with Frank Yankovic's music.—Mrs. T. R. Sarich, Resusselaer, Ind.

Ch. 7 certainly used good taste and sound judgment in selecting Fran Allison to be hostess of the afternoon matinee. She certainly expresses herself well and is a credit to Chicago TV.—N. J. Urban, Chicago.

Please tell me if the cat and mouse on Andy's Gasp were real. I have argued they were real; so please tell me if I'm right or not.—Bobby Wallace, Chicago. [The cat was real. The "mouse" was actually a hamster.]

Would you please tell me the name of the theme song that brings on the movie at 10 P.M. Tuesdays?—Mrs. Dorothy Kendrick, Jr., Gary, Ind. ["Gone with the Wind Theme Song."]

3 4 KRAFT THEATRE-Drama

Tonight Kraft Theatre repeats, via kinescope recording, "A Night to Remember," the story of the sinking of the Titanic. At its first presentation five weeks ago, it was hailed for opening a new epoch in television. In covering the myriad activities aboard the enormous liner, not to mention those aboard nearby vessels, the show proved that a live TV production could achieve a scope believed possible only in a filmed production. The Titanic sailed from Southampton, England, at 12 Noon, April 10, 1912. Publicized as virtually unsinkable, the fastest ship afloat was on her maiden voyage, and carried many notable aboard. Four days later, a little after 11:30 in the evening, she struck an iceberg. In a few hours 2200 people had drowned; only 700 survived. For a graphic picturization of how some of the intricate production problems were solved, turn to P. 16 of this issue of TV GUIDE.

Goodbye, Miss Brooks?

Eve Arden—here with Don Porter in 'Brooks' movie—goes overboard for friends.

TELEVISION'S MOST FAMOUS TEACHER IS EYING A PERMANENT VACATION

Eve Arden, who doesn't believe in trends, is currently caught in the middle of one. She is also in the happy situation of being about to say, "I told you so!"

Miss Arden, of course, plays Connie Brooks in Our Miss Brooks, a role which—over a period of eight years on radio and TV—has made her the most famous (and best paid) schoolteacher in the world. She is also beginning to be a rather tired one.

The first trend she didn't like was the

Bob Rockwell has returned to the show as hard-to-get Mr. Boynton. Forgetful Eve Arden is apt to call Gale Gordon (see right) Clarence.

radio-to-TV transition that seemed to demand, automatically, that a show be done every week. "Right from the start," she says mildly, "I wanted to do the TV version every other week."

A more recent trend, the change in format, was also opposed by Miss Arden. "I didn't want to leave Madison High," she says, still mildly, "and I didn't want to lose either Mr. Boynton or Mrs. Davis." She'll probably never see Madison High again, but Mrs. Davis, her loyal landlady, was back on the show by midseason. She was followed in short order by Mr. Boynton, the love-immune biology teacher, who had been replaced last fall by a biceps-studded physical education instructor played by Gene Barry. Barry, unhappy at being tied down to a single series, recently asked out and Bob Rockwell walked right back in as Mr. Boynton.

Eve, a quiet worrier rather than a strident battler, may still find herself holding the short end of the stick. There has been considerable talk about dropping Our Miss Brooks next season to make way for CBS' ambitious new 90-minute live dramatic series. The talk has been pointed up recently by Our Miss Brooks' rather strange renewal terms. The sponsor, beginning last month, is taking 26 more shows—19 of which will be repeats.

All this, however, is no skin off the end of Miss Arden's pert nose. The fact is that she'd dearly love to say "Good-bye, Miss Brooks," and go back to the ranch—the one with the husband and the children and the animals. She would also like to make an occasional motion picture (she is even now being talked up for the title role in "Auntie Mame"). She doesn't count the feature-length movie based on her TV show. She'd also like to take a fling or two at a good TV drama.

"I do love Miss Brooks," she admits, "but enough of a good thing can be too much. Besides, the old Madison High films are going into syndication, the present show will be on all summer and RKO has just sold all those old movies to TV and I'm in most of them. People are going to have to go to Siberia to escape me."

Miss Arden is that not-so-rare combination, the actress who doubles in brass as a homebody. Married to actor Brooks West, whom she met while doing summer stock in New England six years ago, her home is a ranch some 40 miles out of Hollywood. The ranch is well populated not only with children (they have four) but with animals of various sizes and descriptions. Furthermore, every animal has a name—three of the sheep, for example, being tagged Elizabeth Taylor, Jane Russell and Marilyn Monroe. It is a situation which can make the family conversation rather confusing to the casual guest.

"It is even more upsetting," a friend commented recently, "to have one of those sheep come waltzing up to you with lipstick smeared all over its beak. I swear to you, Eve kisses them!"

The Wests keep their professional lives strictly apart. "Which," Eve says artlessly, "is what keeps us together. He has his work and I have my work and we have our home."

One of Eve's two self-confessed faults is an utter inability to remember names. Every week, when she does the warm-up prior to filming the show, she holds a little slip of paper bearing the names of the cast—some of them people she's worked with every week for eight years. "Without that slip," she admits, "I could look Gale Gordon right in the eye and introduce him as 'Clarence.'"

Fault No. 2 is a penchant for getting herself emotionally involved in her friends' problems. Consequently Eve finds herself serving as counselor, advisor, confidante and psychiatrist.

"I just get involved, that's all," she shrugs.

Eve can also be a practical soul. Last December, tired of trying to think of new warm-up jokes for the studio audience on filming night, which happens to be Tuesday, she hit on a genuinely brilliant idea. She appears before the audience at 6:50 P.M.—Pacific Time, of course—thanks them for coming, introduces them (card in hand) to the cast and then, promptly at 7, turns on three large-screen TV sets. For the next half-hour the audience is nicely warmed up by watching the weekly live telecast of The $64,000 Question.

THE SHIP THAT SANK

... In Brooklyn

How 'Kraft Theater' Gave Viewers
'A Night To Remember'

Into NBC's Brooklyn studio (the size of a football field) went TV GUIDE's cameramen for a behind-the-scenes look at Kraft Theater's ambitious "A Night to Remember," the last hours of the Titanic, which sank April 15, 1912. The production called for 31 sets (hull, bridge, engine room, decks); 107 actors (72 with speaking parts), 3000 gallons of water and $95,000. Set designer Duane McKinney worked six weeks with the Titanic's blueprints. Crews labored 14 days to make the sets authentic—down to the damask on writing-room walls.

Set designer McKinney, armed with liner's blueprints, insisted on accuracy, as in the scene at left.

Workmen busy on the grand staircase, faithful to original in every ornate detail.

Some sets were tilted to give the illusion of listing decks after ship struck iceberg.

Fireplace which graced grand saloon. It was built to collapse at climax.

Into the wheelhouse went hours of care, replicas of the great ship's equipment.

Good Morning

After trying for two years to find a show to tee off its morning programming, CBS has now come up with Good Morning!, featuring Will Rogers, Jr., in a format designed to furnish early-rising viewers with news, weather and interviews. Unfortunately, this newest entry is no better than previous tries.

Rogers is the son of the late humorist and vaudeville star. A former actor, U.S. Congressman and newspaper publisher, he resembles his father physically. Young Rogers will undoubtedly be compared to the elder Rogers by viewers with long memories. And he suffers by comparison. He's a pleasant person but he's neither glib enough nor personable enough to carry off the full hour's emcee duties demanded here.

As host of the proceedings, Rogers must introduce the feature stories and interview guest personalities. Because of his political and journalistic background, he's in his sphere when he discusses national problems with

Grand Ole Opry

String-tied stalwarts of Grand Ole Opry. Show is enduring, endearing.

It has been said that nobody likes country music except the people in the country. Fortunately, there's a lot of country in the country. Enough to have made Grand Ole Opry, first on radio and now on ABC television, a Saturday night favorite.

The Bing Crosbys, Perry Como and Frank Sinatras get short shrift in the country-music department. Here the shining lights are Hank Snow, Ernest Tubb, Roy Acuff, Hank Thompson and other string-tied stalwarts who would be as lost without their guitars as a comic without his writers.

Grand Ole Opry is neither grand nor opera. And it is not old—it is timeless. After a quarter of a century, Washington politicians. But when he must gab with studio visitors such as humorist H. Allen Smith, or talk about the difference between a pizza and a hot dog, he gets lost. He tries valiantly to establish rapport with his viewers but never quite does.

Ned Calmer, a veteran CBS newsmen, dispenses the early-morning headlines with no attempt at analysis and few furlows. He also tries with little success to warm up his work with the insertion of off-beat stories.

The news portions of the show utilize CBS newfilm for visual dressing and occasionally score a beat on the competition with film of an event that happened too late to make the news shows the preceding evening.

Pamela Good does the weather report, making use of animated maps. But she, too, fails to project much personality.

CBS apparently hasn't lavished much of a budget on Good Morning! The show emanates from a small studio that looks dreary because of too few sets and props. There is none of the constant activity and flow of personalities of NBC's Today.—R.S.

it could be called traditional—a sort of Saturday-night folk-song sing.

If country music seems to the city-bred ear a constant variation on a single theme, with its lyrics ranging from sad to downright mournful, it is perhaps because the city man leads too complicated a life. And if he doesn't understand the almost child-like humor of country comics, possibly he has forgotten that Milton Berle first started to slip when he gave up the fright wigs and blacked-out teeth of his early TV shows.

Grand Ole Opry is a way of life, both enduring and endearing. And as difficult to cultivate as a taste for olives.—D.J.

FINE TUNING

By Ollie Crawford

The $64,000 Challenge joins list of TV shows. This may become known as "Challenge, Son of The $64,000 Question."

The way this idea is catching on, TV is going from riches to rages.

There's a big demand right now for graduates of Harvard, Yale and The $64,000 Question. A guy has to have either the old school tie or the old school money-clip. If a guy wants to break into TV, he has to study shoemaking and opera-singing. This makes him a qualified cobblerwarbler.

TV is even reported developing a show called The $64,000 Question Meets Abbott and Costello.

The $64,000 Question staff may soon come up with comedy shows, like I Love Lucre—and a big dramatic spectacle, Money Becomes Electra. It won't be long until even Lassie and Rin Tin Tin are chasing categories. If you really want to know how many shows can be developed from The $64,000 Question, that could be the $64,000 answer.

We'll soon have actors on Studio One, trying for Studio Two.

This will all end with a show for $64,000 Question losers, in which they match Cadillacs.

Prince Consort On 'Queen For A Day'
Wined And Dined 3000 Women In 10 Years
And His Wife Approved!

Man named Harry Mynatt (that's Harry at right) has dated 3000 different women on 3000 different nights in the past 10 years. "It was a lot of fun," says the extroverted Mynatt, uttering an understatement of the first magnitude.

For 10 years Harry was employed by the Queen for a Day radio and TV show to escort the program's daily winner on a royal tour of the town. After a decade as prince consort, Harry, still a smiling, healthy fellow, was made an associate producer. "More headaches," he grumbles, "and less fun."

Mrs. Mynatt never commented on the evenings Harry spent gallivanting with queens until after he got his promotion.

"I was either very confident or very foolish," she told her husband thoughtfully.

Most of the queens Harry escorted were between 30 and 40 years old. Some were in their late teens and some were grandmothers. "The older gals were the most fun. They really enjoyed themselves," says Mynatt. (He spent $5000 a year in tips alone to help make their excursions more enjoyable.)

Marlene Gentle receives crown from Queen for a Day emcee Jack Bailey.

The "queen's whirl," as the show calls it, has hardly changed in the 10 years the show has been on radio and TV. At 9:30 A.M. the queen is picked up at her home or hotel and taken to the hairdresser.

From the hairdresser's she goes for lunch to either a movie studio commissary or to one of the big Hollywood restaurants, then on to a studio tour and a professional make-up job. From 4:30 to 6:30 she returns to her suite at a local hotel and rests for her night-club encounter. That means dinner and a show at a local club and, if the queen still feels up to it, a final stop for the late show at still another club.

"If the queen's husband was along on the whirl," Mynatt reminisces, "the queen would very often say, as I lit her cigaret, 'My husband NEVER lights my cigarets for me.'

"And sometimes toward the end of the evening, a husband would whisper to me, 'You're spoiling her. Cut it out!'"

Only once, however, was an irate hubby out to "get" Harry. The husband was in an out-of-town hospital when a friend told him his wife was doing the night clubs with another man. The husband got out of bed and came to Los Angeles. Luckily, Harry got everything straightened out before any violence occurred.

"After a few years you learn to anticipate trouble and head it off," Harry explains philosophically.

When Mynatt became associate producer on the show, he looked around for someone to replace him as escort. He found Ted Wood, a host at one of the restaurants Harry had frequented. Married for 25 years, Wood, a Britisher, was completely delighted with the job. He loves going out every night and says he gets a lot of personal satisfaction out of the job. His wife says merely, "I never think a thing about it."

After escorting a mere 300 queens, novice Wood feels competent to give their husbands, and husbands in general, a little advice.

"Take the little lady out for an evening of fun every so often. Most of the queens haven't been out with their husbands for years until they go out with us."

When Wood has a day off, does he take his own advice?

"I stay at home with my wife, watch TV, have a glass of beer and a cheese-on-rye sandwich," he confesses with a red face.

Veteran escort Harry Mynatt is about to kiss hand of Queen Robbie Key.

Do You Know Who Jim Novak Is? Jackie Gleason's Hair Coloring

NEW YORK . . . Perry Como was kidding just a little when he reported getting a letter that said: "You've just been elected TV Father of the Year for the whole country by popular acclaim. Please let us know immediately whether you can come in person to the banquet to accept the award, because in case you can't, we'll need time to elect somebody else." Perry doesn't accept such awards. "That's just playing another benefit," he says.

■ Kim Novak says her Person to Person and Ed Sullivan Show appearances and all her film publicity didn't make her famous. A phone operator still asked her, "Is this Mr. Jim Novak?"

■ Oscar-winning TV writer Paddy Chayefsky doesn't believe in being artistic in his approach to writing. He has a midtown office where he goes to work on schedule and writes seven hours a day. "I've always thought of writing not as art but as a business," he says.

■ Marion Marlowe will probably blossom out next fall on her own TV show, directed—of course—by her husband, Larry Puck. He was fired, you recall, as she was, by Arthur Godfrey. Marion and Larry are tight-lipped about what happened in the Godfrey days, but I hear there's a lively yarn (if somebody can dig it up) about the feud between Marion and the McGuire Sisters, which literally reached the hair-pulling stage.

■ Jackie Gleason was heckling a friend about dyeing his hair. The friend said, "O yeah? Well, your hair is the color of salt-and-pepper. What do you put on your hair?" Jackie replied, "That's easy! Salt and pepper."

■ Comedian Joey Adams claims his independently produced movie is so bad "it's the only new movie on television."

■ A writer who used to work for Berle when Milton was king of TV, got a laugh with this not long ago: "I bumped into Milton Berle today. You remember Milton Berle. He used to be in show business. . ."

■ How to become a princess: Start as a TV actress. Cary Grant points out that Grace Kelly told him she'd done 54 TV shows. "She made acting look easy, like Joe Louis made fighting look easy," Grant says. "Me, I'm a bundle of nerves about anything I don't know. I doubt if I'll ever try it!"

■ The Pinky Lees bought two $150 red bar stools for their Beverly Hills home. Later the store manager called to see how the stools were holding up. "Don't know," said non-drinker Pinky. "Haven't sat on them yet."
